Hash news

Well, happy, or should I say Hoppy, new year. This Rash Hag is possibly the most corpulent EVER, with numerous contributions. Not only that, but you have your annual chance to view the Hash Stats, normally guarded with a rod of iron.

- 1. The position of UK On Sec, unresolved at Nash Hash, has now been filled. Sheepshagger (Of mountin Sheep H3) has decided to do the dirty work, and has produced a new updated UK Hash directory. This will be on sale shortly See Too Tuf for further details.
- 2. Announcing the advent of Monday night Hashes!! Yes we plan to hold regular Monday night hashes soon in addition to, and not instead of, the twice-monthly Sunday hashes. The general consensus at the last Hash was that was a good idea.
- 3. Please note that Run 168 will be a week early, due to the fact that the first Sunday in April will be Easter Sunday. Run 167 will be the Mad March Hare Run, to celebrate nine years of QH3!
- 4. Terribly sorry I can't be with you, but rest assured I am still hashing today! Family must come first sometimes.
- 5. There are two available dates for laying trails left between now and the end of May 21st April and 5th May. Going, going, gone (Remember you can leave a message on my ansaphone saying you'd like to lay one I love thosse dirty calls!) this excludes of course the Monday night runs!

A word of advice to bank robbers: never use buses to make your escape. Sean Idle hopped on one after raiding a Southampton bank, only to see an enterprising security guard commandeer the doubledecker behind and follow him home. At least he actually managed to get on public transport, however, which is more than can be said for French thief Jean Fargal, who was forced to wait for 30 minutes for a bus outside the bank he'd just robbed. Having completed his raid Mr Fargal, 41, of Fleurance, had, with split-second timing, rushed outside towards a waiting bus only to be told it was already full. Clutching his loot he waited patiently for the next one to come along, but again it was full, as was the next, and the next after that. When an empty bus did finally arrive the luckless larcenist discovered he didn't have the right change, whereupon he resourcefully returned to the bank and asked for some coppers. "We were dusting for fingerprints and he just walked in," laughed one policeman. "Stupid berk."

It's all been going disastrously wrong in Colorado's prisons. In Denver, a prostitute was mistakenly incarcerated in the men's section of the city jail, sleeping with two inmates before the error was discovered. "I could've made enough to retire on," she later commented. Still more embarrassing was the mix-up at the showpiece Colorado State Jail, where a new, hi-tech electronic door system had to be replaced because all the doors opened whenever anybody broke wind. Trouble started after prisoners were served a particularly rich lentil goulash for their dinner. "I did a whopping pump," explained convict Jerry Myers, "and my cell door just flew open. I couldn't believe it." A bewildered Mr Myers wandered out into the corridor, where he encountered arsonist Norbert Spanner. "I said, 'what's cooking, Norbert?' and he said 'don't know. I grunted and suddenly I'm free. Should have tried it years ago." Exasperated guards endeavoured to round up their charges but were hampered, according to one, by the "fart-making" nature of the goulash. "Lentils proved disastrous to state security," admitted one official.

Hashers arrived in the Pub car-park along with faithful believers from that other organisation which also likes to arrange events on Sunday mornings. Doc tried to recruit some new hashers from amongst them without success, but their congregation could have easily been swelled by Hashers keen to get out of the wet, cold weather but for the fact our R.A. was not available for advice, when it mattered! Apart from the hares, here in after referred to as DS & B, only one other Harriet managed to turn up - well done Tumshudder - nice to see you.

Doc did the honours as stand in R.A. and welcomed virgin Hasher Nigel to the 13 or so assembled, followed by DS & B describing the course as having some 5 checks, no falsies, no bars, simply 2 blobs and you were on. So as the church clock struck seventeen and a half minutes past eleven we were off and at a cracking pace trying to keep up with the likes of Barritone, Pullfrew and Paxo who after a mile suddenly swing off the main drag and around back streets into Woolaton Park, seemingly sniffing out the trail with ease. Once the pack got into the park the front hounds had by this time lost the scent altogether and were wallowing around looking for very damp blobs of flour, eventually having to be pointed in the right direction by DS & B. Was there a check at this point? Due to the trail having been laid some 3 weeks earlier (I was reliably informed) it has to be said some of the blobs were just a touch difficult to detect by your average Hasher - but not for Barritone our resident pro who developed a "scratch and sniff" technique, and when this proved inconclusive merely ate the soggy mess to make sure.

Either by design or accident the pack was as cohesive as the wet flour and kept on the move, in due course arriving under the shadow of Shateau Woolaton where a large B was noted on the ground. This apparently signified a Beer, Bider and Bince Bie Break for everybody except for Josh in his fancy flourescent orange safety vest and Pigeon Shit who were up for SCB nomination. After an excellent half time joke by Paxo concerning an Irishman with Diarrhoea Doc blew his pretty pink thing and it was on on again. Since there were few, if any noticeable checks the momentum built up into quite a run with ample opportunity for the back bankers of short cutting vast tracts of land in order to keep up with the heroes at the front like Rockhopper, GI, Paxo, Backfire, Oriface, Pullfrew etc etc. Your scribe at one point noticed Oriface and Doc performing a strange ritual accompanied by a single word chant, but decided it must have been something in the mince pies to cause this, or else they were practising the old art of Chinese willy burns. On On we went without hesitation, deviation or repetition past herds of deer, antelope, giraffe, elephants, pygmies etc, until out of Woolaton Safari Park and back into civilisation with a decent sprint "ON IN" finish. Time now for beer which at 2 pounds per pint was regarded as a rip off except by Scotsman (from London) Backfire who felt it was "quite cheap"!

Down Downs were administered by Doc-

- 1) Virgin Hasher Nigel looks just the type who might well turn up again?
- 2) G.I. for managing to complete the wet, muddy course without a trace of shiggy on his shoes.
- 3) Can't remember who or what for?????
- 4) The Hare DS (or was it B?) for organising such a high calibre Hash, an excellent technical course, meritable presentation and medium density shiggy (apart from Pullfrew, who is actually typing this out instead of homework and thinks that there was no where near enough Shiggy).

In order to gauge the success of each Hash it appears Doc and Oriface had been devising the "Bastardometer". This is to replace the simple question posed to the mob of what did we think to the Hash, the standed reply being "CRAP". This vastly more accurate technique will get Hashers up to speed and allow them to express their appreciation to the hares. It needs practice, but essentially on the count of 3 by the R.A. all hounds have to shout with verve and feeling "BASTARD" whilst bending their knees and drawing a right handed clenched fist in an arc from the rear to the front and simultaneously jumping in the air (got that). The greater the energy and noise the better the Hash apparently. For those not present on this run make sure you turn up to the next one?

OUR XMAS PARTY

(As seen by Cyranose who remained completely sober throughout)

Hashers present: Too Tuf, Pleasure Gnome, Barritone, False Fart, Dave + Wet Friend, Bleat, Dame Shame, cyranose (A mamoth turnout!)

It was out christmas party! Hip Hip Hoorah! We arranged to meet at the Trip To Jerusalem pub, Nottingham.

I met up with Bleat in Castle Donington. Bleat started talking (Why do I remember this detail?) We then proceeded to Dame Shame's pad at Old Basford, Nottingham. Bleat was still talking. Upon entering Fort Knox (Well, one can never be too security consious in Old Basford!). We were greeted with a welcome glass of warm mulled wine. I was beginning to warm to this warm mulled wine. Bleat was still talking. Was she on tablets, I thought?

We all got out at Fort Knox, with a struggle. I remember lots of keys, lots of locks, wheel clamps, steering locks, security cameras and the like! Bleat was still talking. Dame Shame wasn't. She had a sore throat. I was talking, and laughing.

It was another struggle to get into the pub as it was full of Quorn hashers. It's a very small pub. All the assembled Hashers were riveted by Too Tuf and Pleasure Gnome's tales of their DIY endeavours. You should see their new kitchen! Bleat was still talking. Then the jokes started. The best joke was mine of course - topical, funny, witty and short. It involved a snowman, a snowlady and snowballs. Can you spot the difference?

It was now 10:30 pm. We decided to Proceed to the Canal Tavern. Bleat was still talking. I was still laughing (at my joke). Dame Shame was still not talking (A shame, Dame Shame!) Too Tuf and Pleasure Gnome were looking at each other. Barritone and False Fart were also looking at each other (they're just good friends).

It was now closing time. We were all pissed and needed a curry. Too Tuf and Pleasure Gnome pissed off home to do more DIY (well that's another name for it), so the rest of us headed for the nearest Indian (restaurant, that is!). After several more drinks and a very enjoyable curry, we all staggered headed off home.

Bleat was still talking.

Sunday morning dawned. I couldn't hear Bleat talking. Was she dead? The church bells made up for it though. After tea and toast at Fort Knox we set off for the Christmas Hash. Bleat started talking again.

On on! To '96.
With much love,
Cyranose

Run No. 161

Venue: The Star - Beeston

Date: Sunday 17 December 1995

The Christmas Hash of 1995!

And so it came to pass as Christmas approached, one score and five merry souls journeyed in search of the Star of Grid Ref:(530367), as foretold by a wise man (well Barritone's a bit wise) and Lo! Behold! and other such Christmassy sayings! they arrived at the eleventh hour ready for the ON!.

And verily ON! they went through street and shopping centre calling ON! ON! and the local populace wondered in awe at the magnificent sight and also wondered who ON! was and whether this was the second coming (ooh! you are awful!), but back to the plot! John the Virgin stood standing there in the aforementioned shopping centre and by selection of his "KING OF SPADES" did there unto all the world, a charade based on Robin Hood which was Virgin on the incredible. And on the multitude went and there was no holding them as they left the road and entered the wilderness called The Park. Pullfrew, approaching a stream sought to fly over the water using a modern technology thing called, a bit o' rope tied to a tree branch, but it was not to be as he slid nicely into the water getting wet and muddy and smelly. Some of our gallant heroes jumped it including Cumover, Mark, Baldicock, Dicktafoney and your scribe.

And it also came to pass that several good and many Hashers took a sensible alternative route henceforth to be known as a Bloody Short Cut !!! Never mind!the best was yet to come. A local (Australian shepherd?) known to the Hash as Skippy carried Amanda (yet another Virgin) across the same stream to keep her dry and like a STAR dropped her right in it up to her neck. What a PLANK!

The Hashers from afar were soon to be transported farther still after refreshment by 2.24% gnats piss. So, in a wagon but definitely not on the wagon, their journey continued with Cyranose clinging on to the sidewall, Dame Shame just clinging, Bleat wondering like most of us, whether we'd make it alive and the two dogs getting it together on the floor.

And so to cut a long story short, whilst also trying to give everyone a mention, not because it's Christmas but because I like to embarrass as many Hashers as possible in one go (and this might be a record?)...... there was Dennis, Rockhopper, Cycological, Thomas, Wallington, Lightening Rod, Lyne, Jackie, Roger (the third Virgin in this Christmas story), False Fart, Too Tuf and Pleasure Gnome all doing Christmas Hash things....

What a crap tale this is! Whoever heard of a Christmas story with THREE

VIRGINS and one SLIGHTLY WISE MAN.

Thanks to Paxo for a great crappy run with some good bits in the middle and to his lady wife for a much needed buffet.

Down Downs.

Basil Fawlty, it appears, isn't just an invention of the BBC, as holidaymakers John and Celia Lemon discovered when they were each fined £50 for smoking in their hotel bedroom. "I smelt them through the keyhole," recalled hysterical hotelier Maurice Pumpernickel. "Filthy beasts!" In Australia, meanwhile, newlyweds Carl and Belinda Dragon spent their wedding night scrubbing a hotel toilet under armed guard. "We were having a romantic candle-lit lobster dinner when the manager burst into the dining room with a shotgun and shouted 'Who's in 313?" explained Mr Dragon. "I said 'I am' and then he said 'You had a poo earlier, didn't you... you've left a smudge, now get upstairs." The horrified honeymooners were led to their bedroom where, with a gun pointing at them, they were made to scrub their lavatory "till it shone like the sun", whereupon they were told they "made a lovely couple" and were allowed to return to their meal. "It's like that here," explained one experienced guest. "Last year he almost garotted someone for leaving a bogey on the lampshade."

Thieves have been committing robberies armed with a range of toilet equipment. In Norfolk, father-oftwo Paul Somerville, 34, held up a supermarket armed with a toilet duck. "It was a scent of mountain pines duck," recalled one cashier. "You don't mess with that." In Spain, meanwhile, a bank robber went one step further, threatening staff with an entire toilet. Clutching his porcelain lavatory bowl Pepe Cortes, 39, approached cashiers at the Madrid bank and threatened to throw it at them unless they filled it with money. "It was a huge thing," recalled one cashier, "with a wooden seat. I didn't fancy getting crushed by a loo, so I did what he asked." Unbeknown to Mr Cortes, however, staff had activated a hidden alarm, and when he left the bank he was confronted by 20 armed police, who ordered him to "drop your toilet and squat beside it". "He kept threatening to flush the money away unless we let him go," explained one detective. "He was clearly a complete and utter fruit-job."

1) These stats start from Jan 1st 1993. Data for 1992 is patchy and unreliable, and there are 10 runs on the trot missing (Runs 70-80)

When I can definitely remember somebody being on the run, I've given my memory the benefit of the doubt. Otherwise I've gone by the book.
 The number of runs is counted, not the number of venues you turn up to.

Not only does it make you hungry, but dieting can also cause violent behaviour. According to a recent study it reduces levels of the brain chemical serotonin, resulting in "outbursts of extreme fury". Such was certainly the case with Austrian dieter Carla Winkel, who attacked her husband with a sword because he wouldn't let her share his creamy choux pastry. Nineteen-stone Mrs Winkel, 51, of Ried, had been dieting for less than a week when the incident occurred. "We were having tea," explained Mr Winkel. "Carla had a carrot and I an absolutely gigantic cream-filled chocolate puff. She said 'give me some of that creamy puff!' but I said 'no, my darling, you're too obese'. Then she went berserk," A desperate Mrs Winkel launched herself across the table, but her spouse "defended the puff with his life," whereupon she stabbed him with an antique samurai sword. Even then he refused to relinquish his pastry, and it was only when she knocked him out with a grandfather clock that the delirious dieter achieved her goal. "I suppose the exercise probably did her good," commented a phiegmatic Mr Winkel.

Car crime is attracting increasingly diminutive criminals. Witness the 14-year-old, 4'6" car thief from Nottingham who has to sit on pillows to see over the steering wheel. "He looks cherubic, but actually he's a shit," explained one policeman. In Bulgaria, meanwhile, police are hunting a midget who hijacks cars dressed as Little Bo Peep. The pastoral pygmy first struck a year ago, near Varna. "I was driving home when I saw a girl crying at the roadside," recalled victim Alexis Smodz. "She was wearing a beautiful dress and bonnet so I pulled up and said, 'what's wrong, little angel?' and she said 'oh kind sir, my sheep are lost! May I get in?" No sooner had Mr Smodz agreed, however, when the shepherdess produced a gun and ripped off her bonnet, revealing a "squashy little man's face with big lips". The shocked motorist was then dragged from his vehicle which was driven off at high speed. So far police have few leads and have issued an urgent warning: "Drivers should avoid all dwarfs in floral bonnets!"

Bashes (Bike hashes) involve following a premarked trail along country lanes and bridle paths. The trail usually starts and finishes at a pub and lasts for about 2 hours. Any type of bike will do, but a mountain bike is preferable, and the use of crash has strongly recommended.

Shakedown

Subai

June 1996 is rapidly approaching and if you've registered for Interhash in Cyprus you may be thinking about fitting in a little side trip on the way to the main event.

Why not dust off those trainers and get them tuned-up the weekend before Interhash at the Simileriown in Zubai?

Unprecedented co-operation between the Creek H3 and Desert H3 means a great weekend of partying and a little bit of running across the deserts, beaches and mountains of the best venue in the Middle East.

For the bargain price of US$ 30 (Dh110) per run you'll get the usual T-shirt, mag., food—and drink—plus a whole lot more thanks to our sponsors. If you're saying to yourself "the Gulf, surely it's dry there"—then don't worry; Dubai is the most liberal of the states in this region and there's no lack of the amber stuff. Just ask John "Urine" Jackson, he drinks enough of it on his regular visits here!

Anyway, back to the Shakedown - the format of the event will be something like this:-

Saturday 1st June - Registration on arrival and welcome party in the evening. (Cost not included in reg. fee)

Sunday 2nd June - First run in the afternoon. Different types of run available (e.g. desert, mountain, quarry) followed by a short "circle" in Dubai tradition. Back to the main venue in town for partying on into the evening.

Monday 3rd June - Second run ditto.

Tuesday 4th June - Third run ditto

a new form for the substitute hasher/harriette.

Cancellation of your registration may be made up up to the closing date with 5% deduction for our expenses. If you wish to transfer a registration send the acknowledgement back to us with

The runs won't be too long as it will be HOT and some may not be able to cope.

During early June temperatures often exceed 40°C, with high humidity. If you think this may be a problem for you please reconsider running with us. We will be taking normal precautions (e.g. plenty of water and isotonic drinks) but, other than this, we cannot be held reponsible for your wellbeing.

Dubai Hashes look forward to greeting you with a "Marhaba" in June '96.

REGISTRATION

Every hasher and harriette will have to register in advance and that includes residents of the Emirates. Late registrations, that is those received after February 29th 1996, will be at the increased price of US$ 40 (Dh 150) per run. The closing date for registration is April 30th 1996. Don't leave it to the last minute, send your form in asap. If we receive too many registrations we may have to put a limit on numbers.

Forget the historical and cultural attractions of Vienna, this year we've decided to 'get back to basics' and enjoy a weekend of beer, sex, partying, beer, food, and, oh yes, sex...... (and maybe a run or two to fill in any spare moments). We are still at the planning stage but events should look something like this:

Friday 19 April 1996

Evening: Registration, run through a scenic (?) part of town with the theme of sex, sex, sex - we will probably run through one of Vienna's "red light" areas and visit a few local bars ... Any extra activities are at your own discretion.

Saturday 20 April 1996

Afternoon: A traditional Vindobona Hash run in the Vienna Woods, with beer stops, followed by hash business.

Evening: Fetishists Fantasy Party: come (?) dressed in whatever turns you on - dinner and disco/live band provided, this time the sex is up to you.....

Sunday 21 April 1996

Morning(ish): Hangover run starting at the famous "Riesenrad" (Giant Ferris Wheel) and visiting Vienna's Sex Museum, followed by a farewell lunch. Stay on if you have the stamina and join us for our regular Monday run the next day.

The price for the weekend is not yet finalized, but of course we will try keep costs as low as possible. Remember that Vienna is not cheap, but hopefully our inclusive price (not including accommodation) should be around 500 ATS.

Any questions? Contact "Mindphuck" as above, or John "Glo-Balls" Russell on 2060-22934 (w), 02215-3178 (h), or c-mail: russell@nepo1.iaea.or.at

SURNAME

To World-wide Hashers

Copenhagen Hash House Harriers intend to hold their 888 run on Saturday the 15th June 1996. On this occasion we wish to invite all hashers from around the world to Copenhagen to help us celebrate this milestone.

Taking place from Friday 14th to Sunday 16th of June 1996, this is the weekend after InterHash in Cyprus. Therefore we would like to meet those hashers that would like to see a bit of Scandinavia while on a 'hashing holiday'. The celebrations will begin on the Friday evening with registration followed by a midnight run. On Saturday, run no. 888 followed by a celebration ON-ON. Sunday will feature the usual 'hangover' run - CH3 style.

Price for this weekend will be:

ntil 1st March '96	DKK. 500/-
om 2nd March '96 to 1st May '96	DKK. 600/-
From 2nd May '96	DKK. 888/-

This price covers drinks, food, entertainment and bed accommodation (if you have a tent and sleeping bag a reduction in the price applies) from Friday night to Sunday afternoon.

For true hashers there will be plenty of opportunities to do some hashing. On Thursday 13th June '96, Lyngby Hash House Harriers will have an evening run. Monday 17th June '96, CHHH will have their normal run, then Copenhagen Howling Hash House Harriers will have a full-moon run (date to be set).

So why not come to Copenhagen after InterHash. Copenhagen is "Europe's Culture City 1996" and the week after our 888 there is Europe's biggest rock-festival (Roskilde) just a short distance (25 km) from Copenhagen. There are no problems with transport, as there are direct air flights to/from Asia (Thai and SIA), America and most European destinations.
