Run 54: The Manor Inn, Quorn
Hare: 'Crafty'
Sunday: 16 June 1991

It hardly seemed possible that this was a repeat of QH3's 10th Run way back in 1988, but then only a handful of the old guard were there to testify!

A host of visitors and Virgins (not to mention my brother Paul!) assembled for a quick Hash Flash and were off up the hill, over the Great Central and On On to the woods beyond. As usual several checks appeared in the first half mile. Much confusion ensued with the Virgins who ran and ran in every direction - did someone tell them it was a race?!

Thanks to typical British Summer weather there had been plenty of rain prior to this day, providing the pack with plenty of shiggy to negotiate as well as two water crossings - "Come on - jump in you wimps!" (So we did!)

'Hoot! Hoot!' - oh no! more trains! An incredible sight - the magnificent 'Kolhapur' belching smoke high above the cutting on a sweeping curve towards the pack, all stood on the bridge waiting to smell that distinctive smell of steam engines! Aaahh!

However, I digress, back to the plot. Some of us ran. Some of us walked. Some just got round by whatever means - what happened to Stuart? Oh well, everyone seemed to get back to the Manor in time for
