Run 75

Where the hell is The Chestnuts pub? 10/10 Josh for giving everyone the wrong name of the pub - well, he only lives opposite, stupid bastard.

Eventually hashers rolled up at the 'Nuts' with two virgins amongst us ANN and SARAH. Gentleman Jim was escorted by son Blow Out and daughter Janine. A returning visitor from Milton Keynes, gentle giant Lurch, always a welcome hasher. Also our resident visitor Doc Crippen - pops up every time!! Out of the car park for a short burst of street running Bingham style before sighting a footpath sign pointing towards some greenery. Pils in her faded pink shorts suddenly realised that only yards ahead stood the biggest bull with the biggest horns, yes she backed tracked rather quickly.

A mixture of pathways, school fields and more fields found the front runners seeking flour within a pasture of gentle cows! Suddenly these beasts communicated with each other and decided to charge towards a group of sprinting hashers. Blow Outs legs were definately working overtime to reach the gate ahead, which was duly vaulted. This run was becoming an obstacle course around dimented animals. It must be noted that a little shetland pony standing alone on a bank didn't bat an eye lid as we passed, aah, isn't it sweet!!

The lure of the golden rape took us along the edge of a field for a nettle stinging, ankle breaking, pollen choking trek which became a never ending route march for about half an hour!! Pils was moaning, Optomistic was laughing (when isn't he) and the rest of the pack were walking. Virgins Ann and Sarah found the pace quite acceptable - dead slow.

Up onto the disused railway track was a welcome relief for the pack. Here beautiful views of the Vale of Belvoir were drenched in warm sunshine. Fnarr Fnarr was by now ready for a pint and so dashed off in search of his tippie. This Sunday hash stroll pottered gently over the remaining trail, the church spire of Bingham was our ON-IN landmark. Quite a unique hash from our hare Josh - TEDIOUS!!
