HI FOLKS! BUMMER here writing for your pleasure from memory on Sat 30th nov. This time last week I was with Josh - no kissing it was our first date. However tomorrow is our second and I feel a lay coming on, yes it's the day before the run at the Red Lion, Nether Broughton. As you read this I do hope you enjoyed that one if you turned up. Looks like being wet and windy, what a shame.

To the task at hand. "The White Lion" run - what can I say? A classic trail from my point of view anyway. A decent pack assembled and left its mark outside the pub before setting off (it was my muddy shoes again). On on across the road into yonder fields Check 1. Barritone and I checked right up the fence: Barritone by luck, me 'cause I spotted the yellow arrow marker! Up field down field check 2 by the road. Left or right... lucky lucky Bummer found it left, found Check 3. Uphill or straight on? Pack milling in my direction... I went straight on, it was up the hill of course... Got it wrong, or did I? I kept going through stream over a sheep field (told you it was classic). The pack's off up the hill and I found the In Trail!

I watched, I hid, I laughed, they went up, they puffed, they spotted me and swore! I popped back around the trail and found, lurking and sneaking in the trees, Grope-Her with a camcorder and Hen-Pecked with a stupid grin!! Two men and a camcorder in the woods and I got the Down Down for short cutting when I was merely confused by the trail!

Oh yeah the trail. It followed the skyline, came back down to said woods with Oriface leading the pack, until I stepped out in front followed by the two dodgy characters with the camcorder! On in to the village and the nice cosy pub with a log fire.

Outside for Down Downs, Lightning Rod doing his RA impression dispensed with no mercy. Hares, Grope-Her for getting a free BMW with his camcorder, me for short cutting, be serious! Several more that have faded away into the mists of time - OK I forgot! Nice trail chaps - very little tarmac and plenty of flour, in fact enough to write your name in!!

Merry Happy and a New thingy

On On, Bummer
